Learning Focus

At William Stockton, we take pride in being a welcoming school for everyone. Sadly, the outside world doesn't always mirror this. That's why we've launched the No Outsiders programme, aiming to teach our children that there are no outsiders—everyone is valued. As children grow up, they may see differences as barriers to friendship. Our goal is to flip that narrative, showing them that differences are something to celebrate. After all, we're all unique! We want every child to feel comfortable in their own skin, proud of who they are, and accepted without judgment. Together, let's nurture a generation that embraces inclusivity and lifts each other up.

What changeable weather we have had this week! One minute it's sunny, and the next, we're battling high winds and torrential rain. Despite the unpredictable forecast, it's been business as usual here at school. The children are really well settled into their new classes now.

At the end of this first full week, it feels as though they've always belonged in their new environments.

Every year group is focusing on letter formation, and the children are absolutely loving how grown-up their handwriting looks. It's wonderful to see both the children and staff learning this new style together; it truly demonstrates that learning is a lifelong journey.

Let's hope the weather settles down for us, but regardless, it's been another fantastic week of growth and discovery at our school!

If you see our children in the community, doing something amazing, let us know. We would love to celebrate this with the children in school, by telling our
